AVALANCHE DANGER

(Hold Ctrl then click text above to open link.)

For today, human triggered avalanches are likely over our entire advisory area and the avalanche danger is rated CONSIDERABLE. Persistent instability remains over the entire advisory area making for dangerous avalanche conditions. As the weak structure of snow pack continues to adjust to the storm loads, natural avalanches will become less common, but human triggered avalanches will remain likely. Avalanche run out zones and slopes steeper than 30 degrees should be approached with caution or avoided all together.
